Context of the project

Totalitarianism emerged in Europe by World War II as a popular type of governance seeking to promote state power and reduce the power of civilians. Totalitarian governments establish rigid rules and regulations for citizens, controlled all aspects of daily life by making education, banking and other key services fall under the control of the government.

In this period with such negative attitudes and widespread racism, it was easier for the totalitarian regime to implement a programme of mass abuse and murders. Roma were seen by the Nazis as being inferior, they were not as good a human being as the superior race. During this period, Roma were subjected to genocide and totally denied of their civil rights such as: voting, army restriction etc.

Discrimination against the Roma, marginalization and ostracism are still prevalent in today's Europe. EU Agency for Basic Rights (FRA) in 2016 presented a research where Roma in most of EU countries live in risk of poverty, one third live in households without any water to drink, segregation in schools, high rate of unemployed etc.

The notion of this project is to provide young people with non formal education about the Roma Holocaust and ostracism that otherwise they would never have official opportunity to learn about it as an integral part of equal and cultural diverse Europe.

Methodology

The methods of this seminar will be forum theatre and non formal education. Forum and street theatre is often used by socially excluded and disempowered groups as interactive form of theatre that encourages audience interaction and explores different options for dealing with a problem or issue. Through theatre we will give chance to youngsters to raise their own awareness about the Holocaust, elements of discrimination, denial of civic rights in the past and today towards the Roma.

The methodology is based on NFE methods: using manuals such as: Right to Remember, T-Kit-Social Inclusion, Compass etc. groups work, brainstorming, wall writing, association game, discussion, debate, simulation, audiovisual techniques.

The project gives a high priority to youth participation from the preparatory to the evaluation process, in particular that the participants can shape the program based on their own needs and interests.
