IED SCHOLARSHIPS - TOPIC OF THE CONTEST

DISTANCES

The last months of our lives as individuals have been marked by the awareness of the value of distance. The social distance; the geographical distance of work; our relationships; the planet made small by the increasingly easy and suddenly interrupted movements; the planet made very small by the need to stay at home; the distance between families, groups and individuals because of their economic status; the proxemics in different cultures (Italians no longer shake hands, in the East no one ever shakes hands); the distance that increases between those who produce and those who consume (food, sales, etc.); the distance finally zeroed with the family with whom one lives; the distance recovered with nature; the reduced distance that animals and flowers have shown towards the built and inhabited world.

The distance between European countries.

The distance with the great problems of our lives that have become small.

Develop your project based on one of the objectives stated in the Brief:

Imagine a new product or update an existing one (product, service, garment, visual campaign) that may contribute to reduce distance or to transform it into a value to improve individuals lives and future generations.

Focus on something relevant to the specific undergraduate course you're interested in and comment on the reasons behind your proposal.
